Xtrackers Physical Carbon EUA ETC Security

This factsheet is as at August 31, 2026 unless otherwise specified

At a Glance

The Xtrackers Physical Carbon EUA ETC Security provides investors with direct price exposure to physical EU carbon allowances (EUAs).

- An EUA is a tradeable permit to pollute 1 tonne of CO₂. The EU Commission reduces the number of EUAs issued annually under the Emission Trading System (EU ETS), driving scarcity value.
- Each ETC security issued is fully collateralised by a corresponding amount of physical carbon EUAs, known as the carbon entitlement.
- EUAs are held in custody within the Luxembourg EUA Union Registry, ensuring compliance with the EU ETS.

Physical

Xtrackers Physical Carbon EUA ETC Security is backed by a direct holding of EU carbon allowances (EUAs). The Issuer has direct and sole ownership of the underlying EUAs, which are held in a segregated Series Carbon Account within the Union Registry. Each ETC security is backed by a specific number of physical carbon EUAs known as the allowance(s) entitlement per ETC security. The value of the security reflects the allowance entitlement, the prevailing EUA spot price, and applicable fees that reduce the entitlement over time.

Limited-Recourse

In respect of each series of ETC securities, the underlying physical EUAs (Secured Property) is owned by the Issuer and held through the secured account custodian. It is further secured in favour of the trustee on behalf of the securityholders. Each series of ETC securities will have recourse only to the respective secured property in relation to such series after the relevant service providers have been paid any outstanding amounts in relation to such series. Such secured property is not available to satisfy the claims in relation to a different series of ETC securities (i.e., is "ring-fenced").

Key Advantages

- Direct exposure to carbon EUAs: Provides an efficient way to access the performance of EU carbon allowances, without needing to participate directly in the carbon registry or physical EUA markets.
- Physical backing via EUAs: Each ETC is backed by physical carbon EUAs held in a segregated Series Carbon Account within the Union Registry.
- Segregated and secured accounts: Each Series benefits from ring-fenced collateral, including dedicated carbon accounts and security over the underlying EUAs, promoting clear asset segregation.
- Minimal tracking error: The returns of the ETC securities correspond to the spot returns of EUAs, less fees.
- Liquidity of Xtrackers Physical Carbon EUA ETC Security: Securities trade intra-day on a major European stock exchange.
- Transparent value: The value of the ETC security and the underlying carbon allowances are transparently reported on the Xtrackers website and news sources respectively.

Key Risks

- Non-capital protected investments: Xtrackers Physical Carbon EUA ETC Security is a non-capital protected investment, meaning an investor's capital is subject to the risk of total loss.
- Distinct risks of Carbon EUAs: The EUA market can be volatile due to many other factors, in particular liquidity levels, speculation and market sensitivity to actual or anticipated political decisions and announcements surrounding the EU ETS, and the price of fossil fuels (in particular coal and gas prices).
- Market volatility affects investments: The value of the ETC securities depend on the underlying EUA price. It may go down as well as up and past performance is not a good indicator of future performance.
- Deduction of fees and no interest: Investments in Xtrackers Physical Carbon EUA ETC Security do not bear interest and performance is subject to the deduction of applicable fees.
- Debt security: By investing in this ETC security, an investor does not become the owner of the underlying Carbon EUAs.
- Counterparty risk: The ETC programme relies on many counterparties. If any counterparty fails to meet its obligations, this could adversely affect the product's performance.
- Secondary market pricing: Pricing of the ETC security on the secondary market may occur at a significant discount or premium to the value per ETC security (intrinsic value) published by the issuer.
