Invesco Nasdaq-100 Income Advantage UCITS ETF Dist

QQIA

Fund objective

The Invesco Nasdaq-100 Income Advantage UCITS ETF Dist aims to generate income and provide equity market upside participation through passive exposure to the Nasdaq-100 Index (the "Benchmark") while also aiming to provide some downside protection relative to the Benchmark in the event of broad equity market downturns by investing in options and/or equity linked notes (ELNs). The fund distributes dividends on a monthly basis.

The fund is not managed in reference to a benchmark. An investment in this fund is an acquisition of units in an actively managed fund rather than in the underlying assets owned by the fund.

Risk indicator

The Risk Indicator is subject to change and is correct based on the data available at the time of publication.

¹ Ongoing charge includes management fee, custody and administration costs but excludes transaction costs. Costs may increase or decrease as result of currency and exchange rate fluctuations. Consult the legal documents for further information on costs.

Investment risks

For complete information on risks, refer to the legal documents. The value of investments, and any income from them, will fluctuate. This may partly be the result of changes in exchange rates. Investors may not get back the full amount invested. The Fund may be exposed to the risk of the borrower defaulting on its obligation to return the securities at the end of the loan period and of being unable to sell the collateral provided to it if the borrower defaults. The Fund uses derivatives as part of the Income Generation Component which is intended to provide income. However, there is no guarantee that the use of derivatives will achieve this. The Fund may forego some capital appreciation potential, while retaining the risk of loss should the price of the underlying Benchmark decline. Investments in Equity Linked Notes (ELNs) are susceptible to the risks of their underlying instruments, which could include management risk and market risk. ELNs are also subject to certain debt securities risks, such as interest rate and credit risks. An ELN investment is also subject to counterparty risk, which is the risk that the issuer of the ELN will default or become bankrupt and the Fund may not be repaid the principal amount of, or income from, its investment. ELNs may also be less liquid than more traditional investments. Options or options on futures contracts are subject to correlation risk because there may be an imperfect correlation between the options and the securities or contract markets that cause a given transaction to fail to achieve its objectives. Exchanges can limit the number of positions that can be held or controlled by the Fund or the Sub-Investment Manager, thus limiting the ability to implement the Fund's strategies. Options are also subject to leverage risk and can be subject to liquidity risk. The value of equities and equity-related securities can be affected by a number of factors including the activities and results of the issuer and general and regional economic and market conditions. This may result in fluctuations in the value of the Fund. The Fund is invested in a particular geographical region, which might result in greater fluctuations in the value of the Fund than for a fund with a broader geographical investment mandate.

About the ETF

The fund aims to achieve its investment objective by physically investing between 70% and 85% of the portfolio in the securities that comprise the Benchmark (the "Equity Component"). The remainder of the portfolio will be held in cash or cash equivalent assets and will also be used to implement covered call and cash-secured put strategies (the "Income Generation Component"). The premia received from the sale of options provide recurring cash flow to the fund and help provide some downside protection.

While the ETF offers no guarantees of capital protection, and investors should expect its value to rise and fall with the underlying equity market, one of the fund's objectives is to reduce the impact of a large fall in the equity market. The ETF aims to achieve this by limiting its exposure to the equity market and by how it uses options.

Invesco Nasdaq-100 Income Advantage UCITS ETF Dist was launched on 27 January 2026. Performance information will be available after 27 January 2027.

Glossary

Benchmark: An index against which the ETF is measured, in terms of relative performance, risk and other useful comparisons.

Distribution Yield: The distribution yield is a measurement of cash flow being paid. It's the sum of the distributions over 12 months divided by the net asset value (NAV) of the fund.

Equity Linked Notes (ELNs): ELNs are hybrid instruments which combine the characteristics of investing in underlying equity securities or an index of equity securities and a related equity derivative, such as a put or call option, in a single note form.

ETF: Exchange traded fund. A type of fund that is traded on the stockmarket like ordinary shares. ETFs can be bought and sold during trading hours, like ordinary shares, whereas other types of funds are priced once a day only.

Factors: An investment approach that seeks to identify and invest in securities that display certain quantifiable characteristics. Common examples of factors include Value, Quality and Momentum. A factor strategy may seek to target just one factor or combine multiple factors.

Hedged: The intended result of reducing the portfolio's exposure to a specific risk, such as the risk of fluctuations between currency exchange rates ("currency hedging").

Options: Options are financial contracts that represent the right to buy ("call option") or sell ("put option") an asset at a stated price within a specified period.

Physical Replication: Physical funds invest directly in constituents of the benchmark index.

Replication Method: Strategy employed by the fund to achieve its objective.

UCITS: Undertakings for Collective Investment in Transferable Securities. European regulatory framework for an investment vehicle that can be marketed across the European Union.
