Markets Global equities finished modestly higher overall in July; developed markets gained 0.5% in USD terms amid sharp sector dispersion, with energy up 8.8% and global semiconductors down 13.2%. Early US-Iran tensions lifted oil briefly, then eased as focus returned to second-quarter earnings and artificial intelligence (AI)-cycle sustainability. Value stocks outperformed growth in this backdrop.
Helped Stock selection in technology–semi & hardware and technology–software.
Hurt Stock selection in insurance and pharm/medtech.
Outlook There has been no shortage of economic and geopolitical events in 2026. While uncertainty around the Middle East conflict remains high, the base case is near-term de-escalation. We are monitoring developments closely and focusing on identifying stocks dislocated from their longer-term fundamentals.

Month in Review

- Stock selection was positive in 11 of the 18 sectors as per our internal sector classification.
- An underweight position in KLA, an American semiconductor equipment company, contributed to relative returns over the month. The stock declined primarily due to high investor expectations heading into its earnings report, profit-taking after an overheated first half of the year, and a broader technology sector rotation away from semiconductors.
- An overweight position in Lam Research, a US-based semiconductor equipment manufacturer, detracted from performance as broader market selling pressure and sequential regional concentration declines weighed on sentiment, despite reporting record quarterly revenue.

Looking Ahead

- Continued volatility from the Middle East conflict makes careful portfolio monitoring essential, as prolonged escalation could significantly impact inflation, growth and corporate profits globally.
- Europe’s fiscal support, such as Germany’s recent package, might boost growth in the region after years of little earnings growth.
- Regional diversification remains attractive, with emerging markets expected to grow at a rapid pace, Japan focusing on capital efficiencies and Europe forecast to grow earnings in double digits as German fiscal spending kicks in.
- AI investment interest remains strong, but with market prices catching up to revised valuations, a selective bottom-up approach to AI-related stocks is critical—particularly in software, where AI creates a wide dispersion of outcomes.
- Uncertainty and volatility create opportunities for long-term investors to identify companies where share prices have detached from fundamentals, with patience being key as more entry points emerge.
- The Fund remains broadly region-, sector- and style-neutral versus the benchmark. Our focus is on identifying attractive stocks within each sector, in each region to generate incremental excess returns over time. Our process is currently pointing towards above-average levels of these stock opportunities in the marketplace.

RISK PROFILE

The value of equity securities may go down as well as up in response to the performance of individual companies and general market conditions, sometimes rapidly or unpredictably. If a company goes through bankruptcy or a similar financial restructuring, its shares in issue typically lose most or all of their value.

Since the instruments held by the Sub-Fund may be denominated in currencies other than the Base Currency, the Sub-Fund may be affected unfavourably by exchange control regulations or fluctuations in currency rates. For this reason, changes in currency exchange rates can affect the value of the Sub-Fund's portfolio and may impact the value of the Shares. Exclusion of companies that do not meet certain criteria from the Sub Fund's investment universe may cause the Sub-Fund to perform differently compared to similar funds that do not have such a policy. The Sub-Fund seeks to provide a return above the Benchmark; however the Sub-Fund may underperform the Benchmark.

The risk indicator assumes you keep the product for 5 years. The risk of the product may be significantly higher if held for less than the recommended holding period. In the UK, please refer to the synthetic risk and reward indicator in the latest available key investor information document.
